|| Jurisprudence || Environmental Racism in Louisiana's Cancer Alley Must End:
UN Human Rights Experts ||

|| Tuesday: March 02: 2021 || α. The further industrialisation of so-called 'Cancer Alley' in the southern United States, known for its pollution-emitting chemical plants, should be halted according to a large group of independent UN human rights experts, who on Tuesday branded it a form of 'environmental racism'. Originally dubbed 'Plantation Country', Cancer Alley, which is located in the southern state of Louisiana along the lower Mississippi River, where enslaved Africans were forced to labour, serves as an industrial hub, with nearly 150 oil refineries, plastics plants and chemical facilities.

The ever-widening corridor of petrochemical plants has not only polluted the surrounding water and air but, also, subjected the mostly African American residents in St James Parish to cancer, respiratory diseases and other health problems. "This form of environmental racism poses serious and disproportionate threats to the enjoyment of several human rights of its largely African American residents, including, the right to equality and non-discrimination, the right to life, the right to health, right to an adequate standard of living and cultural rights." the UN experts said.

According to the experts, federal environmental regulations have failed to protect people residing in 'Cancer Alley'. In 2018, St James Parish Council approved the industrialisation of toxic chemical development through 'the Sunshine Project', a subsidiary company of Formosa Plastics Group, that would create one of the world's largest plastics facilities and the building of two methanol complexes by other manufacturers.

Formosa Plastics' petrochemical complex alone will more than double the cancer risks in St James Parish, affecting disproportionately African American residents, flagged the UN experts. According to data from the Environmental Protection Agency's National Air Toxic Assessment map, the cancer risks in predominantly African American Districts in St James Parish could be at 104 and 105 cases per million, while those threats in predominantly white districts range from 60 to 75 per million.

The UN experts said that the new petrochemical complexes would exacerbate environmental pollution and disproportionately effect the rights to life, health, and an adequate standard of living in African American communities. The combined emissions of carbon dioxide equivalent per year in a single parish could exceed those of 113 countries, they said. The UN experts, also, sounded the alarm over possible violations of cultural rights, as, at least, four ancestral burial grounds are at serious risk of being destroyed by the planned construction.

"The African American descendants of the enslaved people, who once worked the land are today the primary victims of deadly environmental pollution, that these petrochemical plants in their neighbourhoods have caused." they said. "We call on the United States and St James Parish to recognise and pay reparations for the centuries of harm to Afro-descendants, rooted in slavery and colonialism."

The experts welcomed President Mr Joe Biden's Executive Order, signed in January, on Protecting Public Health and the Environment and Restoring Science to Tackle the Climate Crisis and the pledge of the US Government to listen to science, strengthen clean air and water protections and hold polluters accountable for their actions.

While signing the Order, the President raised hopes by specifically citing Cancer Alley and commenting that ‘environmental justice will be at the centre of all we do when it comes to addressing the disproportionate health and environmental and economic impacts on communities of colour’.

The experts called on the government to deliver environmental justice in communities all across America, starting with St James Parish, while upholding that corporations, also, bear responsibility and should conduct environmental and human rights impact assessments as part of the due diligence process.

The Independent experts are appointed by the Geneva-based UN Human Rights Council to examine and report back on a specific human rights theme or a country situation. They are not UN staff nor are they paid for their work.

|| Global Warming and Climate Change || Countries Must End Their Deadly Addiction to Coal: António Guterres Called On All Countries Particularly the 37 OECD Countries to Cancel All Coal Projects in the Pipeline by 2030 ||

|| Tuesday: March 02: 2021 || á. The world still has a fighting chance to limit global warming by ending dependence on coal, the UN Secretary-General Mr António Guterres told representatives from governments, local authorities and the private sector, meeting online on Tuesday. Addressing the members of the Powering Past Coal Alliance, he said that keeping temperature rise to 01.5 degrees Celsius above pre-industrial levels is achievable over this decade.

“Once upon a time, coal brought cheap electricity to entire regions and vital jobs to communities. Those days are gone.” he said in a video message. “Phasing out coal from the electricity sector is the single most important step to get in line with the 01.5 degree goal.” Mr Guterres underlined action in three areas to end what he called ‘the deadly addiction to coal’. He called for countries to cancel all coal projects in the pipeline, particularly, the 37 members of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development:OECD, who are urged to do so by 2030.

Mr Guterres appealed for ending international financing for coal and providing greater support to developing countries transitioning to renewable energy. “I, also, ask all multi-lateral and public banks, as well as, investors in commercial banks or pension funds, to shift their investments now in the new economy of renewable energy.” “The switch from coal to cleaner energy sources must be just as the impact of this transition will vary across regions. We have a collective and urgent responsibility to address the serious challenges, that come with the speed and scale of the transition. The needs of coal communities must be recognised and concrete solutions must be provided at a very local level.” Mr Guterres said.

“In many parts of the world, this transition goes hand in hand with improving overall access to energy sources.” said Ms Damilola Ogunbiyi, CEO and Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Sustainable Energy for All. She told the conference that nearly 790 million people worldwide still did not have basic electricity, while 02.8 billion lacked access to clean cooking fuels.

“Right now. we’re at a crossroads where people do want to recover better but, they are looking for the best opportunities to do that.” Ms. Ogunbiyi said. “And we’re emphasising investments in sustainable energy to spur economic development, create new jobs and give opportunities to fulfil the full potential.”

The UN Special Envoy on Climate and Finance underscored the key role the financial sector has in achieving the clean energy goal. Former Bank of England Governor, Mr Mark Carney, spoke of the encouraging trends he had witnessed over the past five years as the issue became a top strategic priority for business.

“It’s mainstreaming very fast and it’s mainstreaming in a very positive direction where the search is for opportunity to accelerate.” he said. However, the UN envoy emphasised that private and public funding, including, by multi-lateral development banks, must be aligned.

|| The World || One in Four Or 02.5 Billion People Are Projected to Have Hearing Problems by 2050: WHO ||

|| Tuesday: March 02: 2021 || α. Nearly 02.5 billion people worldwide or one in four people will be living with some degree of hearing loss by 2050, warns the World Health Organisation: WHO's first World Report on Hearing, released today. At least, 700 million of these people will require access to ear and hearing care and other rehabilitation services unless action is taken.

The Report, launched ahead of World Hearing Day on March 03, underlines the need to, rapidly, step up efforts to prevent and address hearing loss by investing and expanding access to ear and hearing care services. Investment in ear and hearing care has been shown to be cost-effective: WHO calculates that governments can expect a return of nearly $16 for every $01 invested. Lack of accurate information and stigmatising attitudes to ear diseases and hearing loss, often, limit people from accessing care for these conditions.

Even, among health-care providers, there's, often, a shortage of knowledge about prevention, early identification and management of hearing loss and ear diseases, hampering their ability to provide the care required. In most countries, ear and hearing care is still not integrated into national health systems and accessing care services is challenging for those with ear diseases and hearing loss.

Moreover, access to ear and hearing care is poorly measured and documented and relevant indicators are lacking in the health information system. "Our ability to hear is precious. Untreated hearing loss can have a devastating impact on people's ability to communicate, to study and to earn a living. It can, also, impact on people's mental health and their ability to sustain relationships." said Dr Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, WHO Director-General. "This new Report outlines the scale of the problem but, also, offers solutions in the form of evidence-based interventions, that we encourage all countries to integrate into their health systems as part of their journey towards universal health coverage.”

But the most glaring gap in health system capacity is in human resources. Among countries with low-incomes, about 78% have fewer than one ear, nose and throat:ENT specialist per million population; 93% have fewer than one audiologist per million; only 17% have one or more speech therapist per million; and 50% have one or more teacher for the deaf per million. This gap can be closed through integration of ear and hearing care into primary health care through strategies, such as, task sharing and training, outlined in the Report.

Even, in countries with relatively high proportions of ear and hearing care professionals, there is unequal distribution of specialists. This not only poses challenges for people in need of care but, also, places unreasonable demands on the cadres providing these services.

In children, almost, 60% of hearing loss can be prevented through measures, such as, immunisation for prevention of Rubella and Meningitis, improved maternal and neo-natal care and screening for, and early management of, Otitis media, inflammatory diseases of the middle ear. In adults, noise control, safe listening and surveillance of ototoxic medicines together with good ear hygiene can help maintain good hearing and reduce the potential for hearing loss.

Identification is the first step in addressing hearing loss and related ear diseases. Clinical screening at strategic points in life ensure that any loss of hearing and ear diseases can be identified as early as possible. Recent technological advances, including, accurate and easy-to-use tools, can identify ear disease and hearing loss at any age, in clinical or community settings and with limited training and resources. Screening can, even, take place in challenging situations, such as, those, encountered during the COVID-19 pandemic and those living in underserved and remote areas of the world.

Once diagnosed, early intervention is key. Medical and surgical treatment can cure most ear diseases, potentially reversing the associated hearing loss. However, where hearing loss is irreversible, rehabilitation can ensure that those, affected avoid the adverse consequences of hearing loss. A range of effective options are available. Hearing technology, such as, hearing aids and cochlear implants, when accompanied by appropriate support services and rehabilitative therapy are effective and cost-effective and can benefit children and adults alike.

The Report notes that the use of sign language and other means of sensory substitution, such as, speech reading are important options for many deaf people; hearing assistive technology and services, such as, captioning and sign language interpretation can further improve access to communication and education for those with hearing loss.

“To ensure that the benefit of these technological advances and solutions is equitably accessible to all, countries must adopt an integrated people-centred approach.” said Dr Bente Mikkelsen, the Director of the WHO Department of Non-communicable Diseases. “Integrating ear and hearing care interventions within national health plans and delivering these through strengthened health systems, as part of universal health coverage, is essential to meet the needs of those at risk of or living with hearing loss.”

|| South America || Colombia Receives the First Vaccines Arriving in the Americas Through COVAX ||

|| Tuesday: March 02: 2021 || á. Colombia became the first country on March 01 in the Americas to receive COVID-19 vaccines through the COVAX Facility, marking a historic step toward the goal of ensuring equitable distribution of COVID-19 vaccines in the region and worldwide. The delivery was part of the First Wave initiative, a global pilot programme, in which some countries receive early delivery of a limited number of doses of the Pfizer:BioNTech vaccine as part of their total allotted quota.

More doses of the Pfizer:BioNTech and AstraZeneca:Oxford vaccines are expected to arrive in coming weeks in the 36 countries, participating in the mechanism in the region. The 117,000 doses of the vaccine that, arrived with this batch at El Dorado International Airport in Bogota, the nation's capital, marked the beginning of the deployment of COVAX-procured vaccines in Latin America and came about one year after the first case was detected in the region.

"Colombia, with support from COVAX partners, has worked incredibly hard to be in a position to be able to receive its first wave of vaccines from COVAX and I pay tribute to all of those, who have prepared diligently for this arrival." said World Health Organisation:WHO Director-General Dr Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus. "The arrival means that more health workers and high-risk populations can begin to be vaccinated. The COVID-19 pandemic can only end, if, vaccination occurs in an equitable way and I am truly delighted to see vaccine doses in South America and other regions begin to be rolled out this week through COVAX."

During an event to announce the arrival of the vaccines in Colombia, the Country's President Mr Iván Duque, said, "Today marks a very important milestone; today COVAX makes its first delivery in the Western Hemisphere and the first country to receive it is Colombia. We appreciate the joint, combined and articulated work with PAHO:WHO, Gavi and COVAX partners)."

Asserting that Colombia is committed to multi-lateralism, Mr Duque said that with the first delivery in the region it was clear that COVAX was active and worked. He called on everyone to accelerate the distribution of vaccines through COVAX in the Americas."

The COVAX vaccines add to the vaccination campaign, that the Colombian government started on February 17 with doses obtained from bilateral agreements with the producers. Colombia expects to receive 20 million doses of vaccines through COVAX in 2021.

With more than 50 million confirmed cases and more than 01.2 million deaths, countries of the Americas have experienced the worst impact of the pandemic. The region will need to immunise, approximately, 700 million people to control the pandemic. "The arrival of these first doses in Colombia through the COVAX Facility is an encouraging step in the fight against this virus in the Americas." said the Director of the Pan American Health Organisation:PAHO, Ms Carissa F Etienne. "In a context where the availability of doses is still very limited, PAHO will continue to support the great efforts of countries in the region to obtain as many vaccines as soon as possible."

In addition to Colombia, Peru, El Salvador and Bolivia are expected to receive Pfizer:BioNTech vaccines soon as part of COVAX's First Wave initiative. The countries must finalise the administrative, legal and regulatory requirements to move forward with the process. Following the recent WHO emergency use listing of two versions of AstraZeneca:Oxford's COVID-19 vaccine, all countries in Latin America and the Caribbean are expected to begin receiving the first doses of these vaccines through COVAX starting in March, if, all necessary conditions are met. These vaccines are produced by AstraZeneca-SK Bioscience, Republic of Korea and the Serum Institute of India.

In this first phase, all countries will receive doses to vaccinate between 02.2% and 02.6% of their population, as designated by the producer. The only exceptions are Small Island States, which will receive enough vaccines to cover 16% to 20% of their population, due to their size and the high logistical cost of delivering small quantities of vaccine.

Access to vaccines through COVAX will increase steadily month by month and about 280 million doses are expected to reach the Americas and the Caribbean by the end of 2021. Until vaccination is widespread in the population, basic public health measures remain the foundation of the pandemic response. For public health authorities, this means continued screening, contact tracing, isolation, assisted quarantine and quality care. And for individuals, it means continuing to practice physical distancing, hand hygiene, use of masks, ventilation of spaces, and avoidance of crowds.

COVAX is part of an unprecedented global effort to provide vaccines for, at least, 20% of the population in each participating country by 2021 to protect those most at risk for severe forms of COVID-19 and save lives. In the Americas, 36 countries will receive vaccines through the COVAX Facility, 26 of which will be self-funded and ten of which will be free of charge.

The PAHO Revolving Fund is the mechanism, designated by COVAX to procure the vaccines on behalf of the countries in the region. COVAX is co-led by Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance, WHO and the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations: CEPI and works in partnership with UNICEF, the PAHO Revolving Fund, as well as, the World Bank, civil society organisations, manufacturers and others.

The Building-Block Foundational Human Rights

- A: Absolute Right to Live in Clean, Healthy, Safe and Natural Environment
- B: Absolute Right to Breathe Natural, Fresh, Clean and Safe Air
- C: Absolute Right to Necessary Nutritional Balanced Food and Drink
- D: Absolute Right to Free Medical Care at the Point of Need
- E: Absolute Right to an Absolute Home
- F: Absolute Right to Free Degree-Level Education and Life Long Learning
- G: Absolute Right to Guaranteed Social Care
- H: Absolute Right to a Universal Income
- I: Absolute Right to a Job
- J: Absolute Right to Dignified Civic and Human Funeral Paid Through by Universal Income

This Is the Body of Work, by Munayem Mayenin, That Has Brought Into Existence the Philosophy and Vision of Humanics

Dehumanisation of Humanity: Volume One: Published: July: 2007: 978-1-4477-1330-2

Mayenin worked and developed the very critique of capitalism and Marxism while at university in which he had envisioned the world's future in humanics for humanity to reach and achieve liberty and equality for all humanity, which capitalism has continually slaughtered and Marxism failed desperately, even, to understand, let alone, to know or show how to seek and achieve them. Some of these works were published in publications in the early 00s and the volume was published as a book in 2007. There are three other volumes of this planned work, yet to be published.

Humanics The Foundation: Volume One: Published: December 06: 2017: ISBN: 978-0-244-34575-4

This piece of work elaborated the philosophy of humanics and presented the idea of human enterprise and how it works to enable humanity to conduct the human economical endeavours in humanics.

Humanics The Humanicsonomics: Volume Two: Published: June 12: 2018: ISBN: 978-0-244-48334-0

This is the political economics or humanicsonomics of humanics in human enterprise. This volume presents the political economics of humanics and envisioned world's future as two distinct phases: pre-humanical or Kapitalawnomics phase in which capitalism is saved from pseudonomics and brought under the absolute and complete control and power of the rule of law so to make it serve the people at all times and not the rich and through this phase, humanity brings into existence the humanical Building-Block Foundational Human Rights and end capitalism's Poverty Paradigm, that causes all of the high-cruelties, high-brutalities and high-barbarities, that are inflicted on the vast number of humanity on this earth. Further to this, this work advances the system and mechanism of human enterprise and envisioned at the end of the development of Kapitalawnomics human societies will have developed enough to be able and equipped to try and seek to bring into existence humanical societies, that will begin to form a grid of humanical societies into a universal humanical civilisation on earth.

The Humanics Elleesium Declaration 2019: The Humanicsxian Manifesto: Published: April 06: 2019: ISBN: 978-0-244-76474-6

This short piece of work nano-summarised the entire body of Munayem Mayenin's works on humanics. This calls on the working humanity of the world to rise, organise and united under new and humanical political forces, parties and organisations to seek and try to bring about a humanical world movement to lead humanity to equality and liberty.

Humanics The Humanicsovics: Volume Three: To Be Published Later This Year

This volume presents the political philosophy of humanics and the means to deliver that political philosophy by and through humanicsovics, humanical direct form of democracy without party politics whereby each and every individual human being becomes his:her own High Representative and they all run their society's human affairs management together as individuals, working together as scientists and mathematicians without any political parties.

Alphansum Sovereign Necessarius: Published April 14: 2020: ISBN: 978-0-244-58241-8

Although, this large volume is of metaphysical work, it has brought the whole humanical universal view in a harmonious outlook, unifying all expressions, fields, areas and arenas of human existence and in this process this work envisioned the coming into existence the new branches of science, that has already been mentioned.

Laranska The Anatomy of Fear: Novel: Published: January 2009: ISBN: 978-1-4477-1426-2

In his other major bodies of works, that are yet to be published Mayenin has worked on further in elaborating the psychology and social psychology of the zoohumanity, that capitalism and all the dehumanisations it has inflicted on humanity through its enforcement of inequality and the absence of liberty. These as yet unpublished works include: Psychology of Zoohuman, Humanical Jurisprudence, Sociology of Evil, Economics of Squalors: The High-Cruelties High-Brutalities and High-Barbarities of Capitalism, Humanical Moral Science, Social Morality Or Good State, Humanical Civilisation: A Universal Grid of Humanical Societies and Colossus Complexus: Eternally Learning Humanity.

There can not be any sustainability until and unless we take the view that sustainability comes as philosophical, political philosophical, political economical, ethical, moral, sociological, educational, jurisprudential, socio-cultural and ecological and humanical spiritual so that we are able to create a sustainable 'architecture' of existence in a clean, green, circular and sustainable political economics, that underpins all forms and expressions of sustainability and when such an 'architecture' exists within the Larin Paraske Maxim or Oath: Do No Harm to Anyone or Anything: all things and all living forms must have equitable status in the sphere of all existence or all life on earth, with an emphasis on the Universana. Because humanity does not just exist on earth but it does so in the Sunnara, in the Home Bay of the Milky Way Galaxy in the vast expanse of the Universe, our home Universana. Dear Reader, we are on the path of humanics, please, tell the world and world humanity that humanics has arrived on earth from ‘the without of human imagination’, learning, questioning and thoughts, gained from the eternal walks of this human soul’s eternal journey on the eternal path of eternal learning, with its humanical metaphysics, humanical philosophy as natural science, humanical psychology, humanical political philosophy, humanical political economics, humanical jurisprudence, humanical sociology, humanical moral science and humanical arealism. For capitalism has created global warming and climate change and wracked the earth with environmental degradations and pollutions in all spheres, where bio-diversity is getting lost at an alarming rate as the earth keeps on being heated up. Humanity is devastated by capitalism’s poverty-paradigm, delivering all its high-cruelties, high-brutalities and high-barbarities. This is why it is paramount that that we speak up and out and try our hardest to inspire faith, hope, determination and resolution among all humanity of this world, women and men, that we shall not just accept this ‘sentence of doom’, that capitalism’s mindless consumerism, infinite greed of infinite profiteering, decadent vogueism and venomous voyeurism, orchestrated by the Distorteddia have brought us and, yet, that we can, we should, we ought, we must keep on trying: ‘to seek to try: to do: to change: to make better the human condition’ and we do so as one humanity, as women and men, working together as one, in unison with the same aim, same goal, same objective: to get all humanity to liberty, equality, fairness and justice in the rule of law in natural justice, with a purpose and meaning to our existence, where we all humanity, with our all-unity and all-diversity, exist as one humanity naturale on one Mother Earth, in one Sunnara, in one Home Bay Milky Way Galaxy in the one Universana with the humanical foundation of faith: humanity is an infinity unfolding itself, in which, we are all-for-one and one-for-all.
